Rural Emonomist Sees Decline by End of '47, But Nothing Severe

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, March 20 — Ohio farmers were told today to look for lower prices for their crops by the of 1947 but not to worry yet about the bottom dropping out as after the first World war.

J. I. Falconer, chairman of the Department of Rural Economics at Ohio State university, in a talk prepared for the 35th annual Farm and Home week sessions at the university forecast that heavier eating by the public, population increases, plus exports for war relief would prevent a major deflation of farm prices.

The Reparations Fallacy

Russia's insistence on the payment of $10,000,000,000 in reparations by Germany shows that the Soviets still think of peace treaties in outmoded terms. In olden times when a king lost a war he had to ante up so many bags of gold, so many tares of wheat, and so herd of Ayreshire cattle at the Mead farm, northwest many head of cattle. But in modern warfare repara- of Salem, Tuesday. tions are delusions.

Wars come to an end when one side is exhausted, E. Kines of McKinley ave. and no loser can compensate a winner for his losses. It's all the loser can do to keep body and soul together. As for the victor snatching an astronomical figure out of the air and demanding payment in that amount, it just can't be done. It wasn't done after World War I and it will not be done now.

Russia first elected to take its reparations in the form of industrial equipment, but the plan has proved to be self-defeating. With transportation difficulties, obsolescence and German sabotage, what equipment finally arrived in Russia was virtually useless.

Russia's second plan, to take reparations from current production, has proved futile, too, because dismantled plants produce no goods. Any future plans for reparations from current production must yield precosts, the necessity for providing the essentials for Germany's own survival, and the imports to provide be heavily mortgaged for years to come.

Georgia Redeems Itself

The ruling of Georgia's Supreme Court that Leuof the government and its prompt acceptance by Herman Talmadge have redeemed the battered reputation of a state that deserved better from its politicians.

Arnall has pointed in Bedford. out that the Supreme Court's ruling against Talmadge had to be virtually automatic, because the state constitution was clear on the point of succession. The rul- of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rich of E. Fourth st. ing was somewhat less than automatic when it came, however-5 to 2 against Talmadge.

Meanwhile, the Georgia tangle has moved other states to look into the possibilities of similar confusion in their own laws of succession. The Ohio Senate has approved a proposal for a constitutional amendment specifying that if a governor-elect dies between election day and inauguration day, his term would be served by the lieutenant-governor-elect, the arrangement now recognized as proper by the Georgia Sur preme Court.

The Decision Is Made

It is unfortunate, from the standpoint of public understanding, that the question of assistance for Greece and Turkey was raised by President Truman as if the answer hadn't already been given.

Congress is not going to decide whether to give or to withhold aid; that decision already has been made. It was made during the war, when the United States assisted both countries. Assistance also has been given since the end of the war.

Congress is going to decide what monetary limit shall be placed on assistance. Indirectly, it also will help to decide, through expressions of congressional opinion, how far the State Department, the War and Navy departments and the White House itself safely can go in carrying out executive policies. Here again, as has happened so many times before, Congress is being asked to confirm executive decisions already made

The Stars Say By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE For Friday, March 21

ALTHOUGH the day starts off with zest and enthusiasm, with a practical and progressive attack on matters of major importance, probably concerning new deals, associations or propositions, a deviation from practical plans and programs might result in a sudden and unforeseen crash of devastating and revolutionary significance. An impetuous move, a too eager desire to make changes or improvements, is likely to wreck all foundations established. The mentality might be obscured, confused or easily swerved.

Those whose birthday it is have promise of a year of splendid creative work, with energies and initiative keyed to important moves of a new and progressive objective, yet there is a sign of ambition overlaping itself, either through a confused mental outlook, or an emotional or impulsive stress and strain in the way of change, revision or improvement. This will result in havoc, disruption and disintegration of sound ideas and well-established premises. Hold fast to the realistic and concrete.

Do Men Like Women?

Copyright, 1947, United States Brewers Foundation

Maybe you read that recent article in a national magazine, claiming that American men don't really like the company of women. They just put them up on a pedestal and leave them there.

But I wouldn't say that that was so in our town. Look at any married couple-like the Cuppers. Jane wouldn't nag if Dee spent his evenings "with the boys"-but actually Dee likes nothing better than to stay home by the fire, sharing a glass of beer with Jane, playing cribbage, or just talking.

And when he does go out, for an afternoon of fishing down at Seward's Creek, or for an evening glass of beer at Andy Botkin's Garden Tavern, Jane is almost always with him (except when she's got a spot of baking in the oven).

From where I sit, respect doesn't rule out everyday companionship . . . and never should. They go together-essential parts of a successful marriage.

BY HAL BOYLE

NASSAU, Bahamas-Black goldoil pumped from beneath the Atlantic floor-may yield more wealth than the million-dollar harvests once taken from sea beds by vanishing Bahamian sponge fleets.

In the shallow waters of the great Bahama bank-known to natives as "the mud"-six thousand fishermen in 600 schooners and sloops used to hunt valuable sponges that for a century made this British colony an export center for the sponge trade.

A epidemic fungus disease destroyed most of the sponge beds in 1939, however, and all but wiped out the islands' chief industry.

Now seven major oil companies including a local subsidiary of Stan-dard Oil of New Jersey, are exploring the sea bottom in search of oil-bearing formations. All are operating under concessions from the Bahamian government.

By use of radar and gravity meters aboard small vessels the companies are studying underlying rock formations, and wells will be drilled if reports are favorable.

The islands lie on the edge of the continental shelf, largely surrounded by water no more than 20 feet deep, which plunges abruptly in places to depths of three miles

Discovery of oil would come as a welcome boom to thousands of natives left idle by the destruction of the sponge beds, which even before the appearance of the fungus disease had been alarmingly de-pleted by over harvesting.

The industry was begun in 1841 Gustave Renouard, a shipwrecked Frenchman who began exporting sponges to Paris. Soon thousands of natives were at work hunting the sponges, which they sighted through glass bottomed tubs and hooked dexterously with 40 foot poles. Sometimes the small bobbing sloops remained at sea for

The sponges grow in masses on the ocean floor and have to be dried for a period of weeks and cleaned of animal matter before buying bedroom furniture for the being trimmed and shipped. For executive mansion. decades this work was done on the spenge wharf at Nassau, a main attraction for tourists.

"We used to get sponges here by the tens of thousands, and now you can't even fill a sack," said H. A. McKinney, who believes the only hope of reviving the industry is to close the sponge beds until they have an opportunity to rejuvenate themselves.
"Some native fishermen have the idea the sponge beds grow up again overnight like mushrooms," he said. "But the sponge is an animal, not a vegetable, and takes from five to ten years to reach a commercial

Owner himself of a large bed of cultivated sponges, McKinney re-called the devastating swiftness with which the underwater fungus

"Three days after the disease hit one cultivated bed 50,000 sponges died in a single night."

The government, which closed the beds after the 1939 epidemic, reopened them on a limited scale

"But only about $44,000 worth were gathered," sald McKinney, pointing out that formerly the yearly take had exceeded a milars. He sees no po of the industry recouping unless the natural teds are closed another ten years and the government halts wicespread poaching in cultivated

"One owner was out for three weeks with four boats in 'the mud' and came back with only eight miserable sponges," he said.

"Sponging in the old days provided a cash crop distributed all over the islands. That is what the natives needed to buy the clothes, food and tools. "That is what they need now-a staple crop."

Idle natives, their sponge fleets now dispersed, hope white explorers will find a new bonanza beneath ravished sponge beds-oil.

Mighty fine car you've got there, sir! Mighty good-looking too-probably draws admiring glances everywhere you go.

Are you keeping it smart and handsome and shining as it should be?

A big step in the right direction is Porcelainizing. It's the latest in car polishing-a power-buffed finish that glazes the paint to a smooth glistening luster-burnishing and polishing the surface until it becomes slick and smooth enough to prevent the ready accumulation of road grime and dirt.

Buick engineers recommend it. Also the procedure our men follow. Try it-to keep a new car lustrous longer -and give older ones a new lease on good looks.

IN MEMORIAM

Shallenberg, Grace A. In sad but loving rememberance of our dear and devoted Mother, who departed this life one year ago today, March 20, 1946. Today is the day of rememberance

And many sad regrets, A day we shall always remember, When the rest of the world forgets. We think of you in silence,

So few have seen us weep, But many silent tears are shed, When others are asleep. No one knows how much we miss

No one knows the bitter pain We have suffered since you left us, Life will never be the same. In our hearts your memory lingers Sweetly, tender, fond and true,

There is not a day, dear Mother, That we do not think of you. Your loving husband, Walter and children, Lowell, Robert, Marjorie, and Kenneth.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.
